

January 27-31, 2025

Welcome to the last week of January! Thankfully, it is supposed to be warmer than last week. Here are notes for the week:

★ Reminders:

- Our January Bingo Challenge ends this week.
- We are continuing to support our mission in Bend, Oregon on Monday. We will have a presentation in chapel about this mission.
- I am still missing one student's folder with extra math in it. I plan on filling it for next week if that student would like to swap out their sheets 😊

★ Class Pet

- Thank you to Emmalyn for bringing home our class pet this weekend.

★ 100th day

- Just a heads up that our 100th day will be on Wednesday, February 12th. I will be sending out a note soon about that day. Please keep watch.

★ Assignment Notebooks

- I am bolding and making this bigger for an important change in the way we do reading bookmarks. The students will start to use assignment books instead of using a reading bookmark. They will learn to write down their assignments they did for the day and also what they are to read or do at night. If you see a big X on the work for that day, it means it is already done. If it is circled, that is what needs to be done. After you complete the assignment at home, please put your initial by it so I know it was done. It will be a blue looking notebook and it will be in your student's backpack daily. This is in preparation for next year where they have an assignment notebook to fill out.

★ Here's what we will be learning this week:

- Math we will identify pairs, use double digit numbers, and add dimes and pennies.
- Superkids we will keep working with vowel pairs, write with new memory words, and start practicing doing research.
- Christ Light we will learn about Jesus, Mary, and Martha and a parable called The Big Dinner.
- Science we will explore the planets and learn about constellations.
- Music we will review rhythm and practice some music for church.
- Gym class we will be jump roping with a long rope.
